Palm Beach, FL - Monday, April 17, 2023

Businessman and former Republican Congressional Candidate for FL-22, Dan Franzese has announced that he will again run against incumbent Congresswoman Lois Frankel in the 2024 election.

In 2022, by winning 45% of the vote in the general election, Franzese outperformed all previous Republican contenders who previously ran against Frankel in the Democrat leaning district, and the momentum for his candidacy has grown ever since.

"I'm running again because Frankel continues to fail all of us, and it's only getting worse for Americans. The career politicians in charge right now don't care about the concerns of ordinary Americans," Franzese said.

"They don't care that Americans are struggling to put food on the table. They don't care about your safety, and they fail to create opportunities for Americans to work hard and get ahead. We need to protect freedom of speech and equality of opportunity, secure our borders, balance our budgets, tackle inflation and get back to energy independence; our national security depends on all of these things," Franzese explained.

With a strong fundraising plan and a targeted ground game, Franzese will build on the successes of his previous campaign to flip FL-22 Republican. If elected, Franzese promises to bring a businessman's perspective to Washington, stating "I will get our government to work for us, not AGAINST us."
